Cookies and Other Similar Technologies

We, and third parties we allow, may use cookies or other automatic technologies to collect information about your online activities while using our Site. We may use session cookies or persistent cookies. Some features allow data to remain only for the time that your browser is open, for example a session cookie. A persistent cookie is an example of functionality that your browser provides that allows the data to persist on your device/computer even after the browser is closed. The information we collect automatically may include the name of your internet service provider, the Internet protocol ("IP") address you are using, the date and time you accessed the Site, and other similar information. An IP address is a number that automatically identifies the computer or device you use to access the Internet. The IP address enables our server to send you the web pages that you want to visit, and it may disclose the server owned by your Internet service provider. We may use IP addresses to conduct analyses and performance reviews and to administer the Site.

Cookies and similar technologies within a web browser also allow persistent storage of data as you navigate the website. This functionality does not personally identify users, although it does allow the web server to differentiate one user from another. Many websites use cookies and similar technologies to provide website and application features when a user visits the website, and most web browsers are set up to accept cookies. We use cookies to: allow our Site to function and improve delivery of your online experience; remind us of who you are and to access your account information to deliver better Services; estimate our audience size and usage of our Site, including measuring repeat usage of the Site; deliver advertisements that are more relevant to you based on your interests and to help measure the effectiveness of those advertising campaigns; and measure and track certain traffic patterns, including information like the areas of the Site you have visited to better personalize content, banners and promotions.

You can set your browser to refuse cookies, but some functionality of your experience may not work properly, and you may be required to re-enter certain information each time you use our Site.

We use cookies provided by Google Analytics to better understand and personalize your use of the Site and Services. Google Analytics collects information like demographic data, how often users visit our website, what pages they visit when they do so, and what website they used prior to coming to our website. To process analytics data when you visit our Site, Google Analytics may use various technologies, including cookies or similar technologies to identify your browser or computer device. Google does not receive your user account information, your email address, or other personally identifiable information through the use of Google Analytics cookies. Where we use Google Analytics, we have set up the service to anonymize your IP address as soon as data is received by the Analytics Collection Network before any storage or processing takes place. You can learn more about Google Analytics and/or opt out of Google Analytics on this website: How Google Uses Data When You Use Partner Sites or Apps.

We use Google Ads remarketing service to advertise on third party websites. Remarketing could be, for example, in the form of an advertisement on the Google search results page or on any website in the Google display network. Third-party vendors, including Google, use cookies to serve ads based on a user's browsing history. You can set preferences for how Google advertises to you using the Google Ad Preferences page, and you may opt out of interest-based advertising by, for example, manipulating cookie settings or permanently using a browser plugin.

You may opt out of interest-based advertising by entering your preferences in cookie settings or permanently using a browser plugin. The Network Advertising Initiative also offers a means to opt-out of a number of advertising cookies. Please visit www.networkadvertising.org to learn more. Note that opting- out does not mean you will no longer receive online advertising. It does mean that the company or companies from which you opted-out will no longer deliver ads tailored to your preferences and usage patterns.
